

Name of the author: JANVI SACHDEVA

Age: 18(as on December 31, 2019)

Group: 1

Theme of entry: Man, nature and energy

Target audience: Group 1

Educational qualification: B.A. Political Science Hons.

School/ college/ institution: Delhi College Of Arts And Commerce

Class/ semester: 1st year II semester

Email Id: Janvisachdeva58@gmail.com

Mobile Number: 8851780754

NEFT confirmation receipt number: 001114092638

Google transaction id: CICAgKDu5KG7WQ

"There is wisdom of the head and wisdom of the heart"

-CHARLES DICKENS

In the contemporary world, all of us are familiar with drug addiction. If a person gets a chance to use drug, even though he knows that it is injurious to health, his decision would rely upon his wisdom. Wisdom is a shine which helps and enlighten people to lead their path in an effective manner and helps a person to tackle a situation and to take decision which helps a person to get rid of adverse condition he is facing.

Wisdom can be considered as an insight, penetration of good thoughts and experience and a good sense of judgment. There is difference between intelligence and wisdom which means that mental ability makes a person intellectual but not a wise one. Intelligence speaks but wisdom listens.

A wise person is one who can see and feel the situation all above and beyond the interpretation of any other human being. He is one who can understand and accordingly react to a particular situation which is still unclear or may be is not said clearly. He is one who analyse a set of circumstances from every possible degree in terms of both facts and emotions and react to it in a best possible manner.

Wisdom of a person depends upon head and heart which are vital for human beings to live their life. It seems that perspective of heart and head are quite similar to each other but, not always the opinion of heart and mind are equivalent to each other. There may be a clash between the perspective of the heart and the mind.

For instance, if there is a person who have seen another person deprived of education, the former one could be familiar with the value of education because he had felt it. And if he would be a wise person he would have done something in order to provide the latter with education. And moreover, he would have adopted certain measures to provide other people with education.

Similarly, a person can be wise enough to take the decision but it depends on a person that if he is taking decision rationally, responsibly basically practically according to the head's point of view or according to the heart's viewpoint i.e. a decision which is enriched with emotions, morality and ethics. It is the wisdom of the head which helps and support the wisdom of heart to be taken into practice.

The heart's wisdom is instinctive i.e. conscious reasoning. When a decision is taken with the emotions and concerned with the principles of right and wrong behaviour and constitutes intuitive discipline it is considered as wisdom of the heart.

The knowledge presides in the head mainly considered as head's wisdom. Wisdom of the head is based on factual explanation. The bastion of fact is eminently practical and is regarded as one of the major constituent of wisdom of the head. In wisdom of the head all decisions are practically taken on the basis of actuality and certainty.

Wisdom may prevail in both the terms of head and heart but it's very necessary to balance one against the other. Wisdom of heart compels a person to take fruitful decision which would be supported by wisdom of the head. Wisdom is earned with learning from experience, to learn how and on what grounds a situation should be evaluated. It can be acquired when there is mediation between a person and his soul. Wisdom can be attained when there is strong support network and the person is tolerant enough.

Thus, to combat certain situations in life there is a great necessity of presence of wisdom.